Above information was valid as of November 15, 2021, however, is subject to change at any time without notice. Guests are responsible to check and understand any existing or new travel restriction imposed by the Government of Canada. It is the traveler's responsibility to check the entry requirements put in place by the border authorities. Local rules to do with travel amid the pandemic are known to change with minimal notice. For this reason, it is advisable to check travel information for the destination that you plan to visit immediately before you travel. All guests will undergo a pre-embarkation health screening including an enhanced health questionnaire. Guests are responsible for complying with entry requirements for the country of embarkation, as well as the travel requirements affecting their return journeys. These regulations could include a COVID-19 test (PCR or other).
